nek Quien Talks of "Fluck" from the Stadipoint of a Mas in Training—How Jim Corbett Stands at Present—The New Weight Scale Movement.

The question as to Peter Maher's gameness a matter of public concern, and to-day the Irish champion is not such a favorite in his match with Bob Fitzsimmons as he was a week ago. An incident goes to prove this. On week ago. An incident goes to prove this. On Monday last when a prominent better heard that another man wanted to lay $1,200 on Pitzsimmons against $2,000 on Maher, the former made up his mind that he would take that chance. On coming together this convermation took place:

"I hear you will bet $2,000 on Maher against $1,200 on Fizesimmons. Is that right?" Well, I was thinking of it, but, really, it ought to be even money."

"Humph! You've changed your mind. Well. I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll bet you $1,500 against $2,000." No, I want even money."

There was more haggling but the betat even was finally made for $1,000. Men who want to put out their money, though they like Maher's style, cannot see that the Irishman has ione anything to prove himself a stayer, and they believe that Fitzsimmons can hit as hard as most men now in the ring. If he lands a time or two Maher will feel something that there is nobody to say that Peter has shown that he belongs in the gamecock class.

After the above bet was made, Jack Quinn, the Scotch light-weight champion, who was present, said sometimg that is worth noting.

Quinn is an observant and level-headed chap,

After the above bet was made, Jack Quinn, the Scotch light-weight champion, who was gresent, said something that is worth noting. Quinn is an observant and level-headed chap, who generally speaks sensibly.

"The fact that a man trains hard," said he is not so widence that he is agme. He may be naturally energetic. His mand may be of the kind that requires physical action to counteract its workings. I mean that a man may be peryons and excitable—his blood may have a feverish tendency—and such a person, when of an athletic disposition, naturally wants to go and do something to expend his surplui energy. That sort of a display has nothing to do with courage under a punching. The man may be young, strong, hearty, but a blow landed in the right spot by an experienced and powerful opponent will knock a good deal of that vigor out of him, and two or three blows may do him up completely unless he possesses something more than the characteristic which I may describe as restless activity. I have known men to take a torrible lot of punching before yielding victory. I don't mean lazy men. I mean men whose life and activity are brought out only under a stress of circumstances, such as a good thumping. Under these conditions I have seen men who take plenty of time to do everything they undertake, brighten up in an astonishing way and fight like tigers. The stuff was in thom, but it was latent. It required an unusual occasion to bring it out.

"On the other hand, there are men who, while in training, as well as in their every day avocations perform their duties with a rush and sarnestness so great that it might be called flery. Often it is only nervousness, and, in reality, a sign of weakens that it might be all the training as well as in their every day avocations, perform their duties with a rush and sarnestness so great that it might be called flery. Often it is only nervousness, and, in reality, a sign of weakens that it is the training in the world if a fallow get the right kind of a smash here," and Jack placed a linger the country should have a chance to write what they thought, if they could not in person come to the discussion.

There is no doubt that the whole business of weights requires revision. Take for example the boxers who contend at weights between 105 and 125 pounds. There are a dozen of them within those twenty-one pounds who claim the championship. Tommy Kelly, Billy Burray, Jimmy Kennard, Jack Lyman, George Dixon, Ike Weir, Johnny Van Heest, and Mike Cushing, are the Americans who make claims to championships within this limit, and between, say, Dixon, Weir, Griffin, and Van Heest there is but seven pounds, allowing that Dixon can fight at 115 pounds, which is doubtful. It is absurd to have one champion at 115, one at 118, and another at 120 pounds. The difference is too tilling. We know that Jack McAuiffer and Jimmy Carroll fought for the light-weight championship at 137 pounds, when 133 pounds had therefore been recognized as the limit. Many more instances of inconsistency could be cited. The new sents is needed, and when it is adopted and approved by all the country.

ti is adorted and approved by all the country, it should go.

It looks as if Tommy Kelly and Bill Pilmmer would surely meet. Pilmmer has had good tacking since Charley Norton took hold of him, and Kelly's new moneyed man apparently has quite enough. They have posted $250 in cash, and, in this case, the holder of it will pay over the portion of the youngster who fails to be ready to the other side and take chances at being sued.

A word about Jim Corbett. This man was never in better health than to-day, and his manner is testimony enough that he wants a go with Mitchell. He has become more of a favorite than ever with New York sporting men during the last few months.

The Century Road Cab of America and

Some of Its l'owers, The increase in membership to the bicycle ranks every year marks the advent of many new clubs in all sections. One of the latest additions to the already large list of clubs, which is acquiring national fame, is the Century Boad Ciub of America. The club, with headquarters in Chicago, was only organized last October, but they have already assumed a leading position in the cycling world. The object of the club is the advancement of bicycle road riding and also the improvement of roads. The active Western wheelmen, recognizing the need of a club to promote and have jurisdiction over road riding and racing. about such things will do themtwo departments not recognized by the League of American Wheelmen to any extent, were successful in the formation of this new body. The Century Road Club is an amateur organ-

The Century Road Club is an amateur organization, and has about 500 members. White not antagonistic to the League of American Wheelmen, they propose to assume charge of such departments of cycling as the League fail to recognize. The membership of the club is not composed entirely of men who have made century rins. Any amateur wheelman in good standing is eligible to membership. The initation lee is $5 and the dues $2 a year. The club will take no cognizance of any track performances. Among the members are some of the best road riders in this country. Fitteen women who have ridden centuries are members of the club. For every century made by a member of the club a gold bar attached to the club's pin is presented to him. To become entitled to a century bar it is imperative that the 100 miles be ridden in sixteen hours. The entire distance must be made on the road.

The present directors of the club are William C. Herrick, Elictchie G. Betts, and J. S. Root of Chicago. The list of members include Charles Lee, H. T. Park, H. N. Wailace, H. P. Walen, J. W. The forthcoming bicycle fournament at Madison Square Garden promises to eclipse anything of the kind ever held. In addition to a six-day international race of twelve hours each day, for which the company will give prizes of $2.500, and for which the champions of England Ireland, Scotland, France, and America have England, Ireland, Scotland, France, and America have entered, there will be a feature which will undoubtedly be of great interest to the public in general as well as shose who are particularly interested in bleycling. This will be the cycle exhibit, which will be held in the hall adjoining the amphitheatre, and as one title will give admission to well hat read as one title will give admission be well hat renized. The leading manufacturers of this country and England in the fact of the country and the country and the country in the country less thanks of the country and country and the country in the country less thanks of the country and the country of the tournament. Also the trick riders maithy, Canary, Ley, and Borber.

Lynch and Halitgan Should Make a Good The recently chartered Hamilton A. C. of Brooklyn, whose temporary headquarters are at 380 Fulton street, and under whose auspices the ten-round glove bout between Jimmy Lyuch of this city and Walter Haligan of Brooklyn will take place in the Ciermont Avenue rink on Feb. 25 has elected the following offi-cers: William Coyne, President Joe Early, Treasurer, and Bod McMahon. Captain. Coyne is not very well known in the attlette world, but he is known among known in the attlette world, but he is known among his intimate triends as an enthusiast in the boxing line and a thoroughly fair mean.

The Coming Cake Walk.

The grand cake walk to be held at the Martison Square Garden on Wednesday night will be an international affair and the greatest event of its kind. It will be walked in three heats, and the couples will be weeded out from time to time as they fail to come up to the standard in the estimation of the judges. In addition to the walk there will be several novel features. The management have engaged Mr. Jesse Williams and waily Riccuis to dance the Mobile beat, which will be tracked to say the laset, and is one of the scales of the
